

Benton County Sheriff's Office (BCSO)
HISTORICAL SYNOPSIS

The history of the Benton County Sheriff's Office pre-dates Oregon statehood. The following synopsis lists some of the important events that have helped shape the Office. Information on this list has come from several sources including "A History of Benton County" by David Fagan (1885), work by Mark Phinney, a WPA archivist in 1936, the Benton County Sheriff's Office Annual Reports and local newspaper accounts. While we try to be accurate, not everything is verifiable with contemporary documentation. We believe this is the best information available.

THE 1800's...

- 1840 Because there was no formal government in Oregon Country, law enforcement was performed by the Hudson Bay Company.
- 1841 A "High Sheriff" was chosen by the people living in the Willamette Valley.
- 1844 The Oregon Provisional Government, using the laws of Iowa Territory as a guide, made the Office of Sheriff mandatory.
- 1847 Benton County was created from Polk County. The original boundaries extended from Polk County on the north, the Willamette River on the east, the California border on the south and the Pacific Ocean on the west.
- 1848 The first Sheriff of Benton County, D. W. Hofins, was elected on June 5th. Less than a year later he left office to join the gold rush in California.
- 1849 Abraham Nelson Locke was elected Sheriff in October. That term lasted until 1851, but Locke came back in 1860 to serve a second term.
- 1851 Samuel F. Starr took office as Sheriff in July.
- 1852 Silas M. Stout followed Starr as Sheriff.

The first homicide on record in Benton County was committed by Nimrod O'Kelly when he shot Jeremiah Mahoney for trespassing. On June 29th, O'Kelly was convicted and sentenced to hang, but the Governor commuted the sentence. When O'Kelly became the expense of the county, the Legislature appropriated $630.00 to the county for expenses incurred in guarding and keeping prisoners after conviction.

- 1853 T.J. Right followed Stout as Sheriff, serving until 1855.
- 1855 John B. Congle served one of the shortest terms as Sheriff, only two months, before he resigned and was followed by James A. Bennett.
- 1856 Sheldon B. Fargo was elected sheriff.

The first jail was constructed while Sheriff Fargo was in office.

- 1858 When Sherriff Fargo could not get a bond, James Bennett was appointed Sheriff again and served from July through September when he resigned. James P. Stewart was appointed Sheriff but resigned only three months after taking office. George P. Wrenn was appointed to take Stewart's place.

OREGON BECOMES A STATE...

1859 Oregon was granted statehood. The Oregon Constitution named the Sheriff as ministerial officer of the circuit and county courts. Sheldon Fargo once more became Sheriff and served from April 1859 through July 1860.

The first known jail break in Benton County occurred when Moses Milner pushed past his jailer at mealtime. He was recaptured three hours later.

1860 Abraham Nelson Locke was re-elected Sheriff after a 10-year hiatus and served for two years.

What is believed to be the only execution in Benton County occurred on June 22nd when convicted murderer Philip George was hanged. He had been convicted of murdering his boarding house partner, John Clark, whom he hit over the head with a board.

1862 Joseph C. Alexander was elected Sheriff. He later served in the State Legislature.

1864 Julius Brownson was elected Sheriff and served until 1868.

1868 Judson S. Palmer was elected Sheriff and served until 1876.

1873 Two prisoners named White and Jones broke through the north wall of the jail and escaped. They were caught the same day and returned to jail by Sheriff Palmer.

1876 Solomon "Sol" King was Sheriff until 1886, one of the longest terms served. King was one of the more colorful sheriffs characterized as "taller and bigger than most men of his time." Sheriff King did not run for re-election in 1886.

1886 William Mackay served as Sheriff until 1892.

1888 Construction of the present day courthouse began. A Benton Republican meeting resolved that $50,000 would be enough to fund a new Courthouse and jail.

1892 David A. Osburn was elected Sheriff and served until 1896.

1893 A salary was first paid to the Sheriff.

1894 The jail underwent a major renovation. The interior was gutted, a concrete floor put down and windows were added on the sides in the cell area. Wood from the renovation was used to repair sidewalks and bridges or used as firewood.

1896 Peter Rickard was elected Sheriff and served until 1900.

THE 1900's (1900 – 1950) ...
